Mayor and City Council Invite Residents to Join Them at an Upcoming Listening Session

During the months of January and February, the City of Bowie will host community listening sessions in different parts of the City to hear what is on the minds of residents. The first session takes place on Wednesday, January 15 at 7 p.m. at the South Bowie Community Center.

Mayor Tim Adams and the other members of the Council look forward to getting input from Bowie residents about local matters, especially about how the city should be spending tax payer dollars, and where the Council should be focusing its attention.

In a recent video promoting these sessions with voters and emphasizing the importance of getting their input, Adams said, "As we knocked on doors during the campaign we promised to hear your voice, to listen to you about what's important to you. We don't want to tell you; we want to hear from you."

In total, the Council will host four listening sessions, one in each of the four Council districts. Residents who can't attend one of the evening sessions, can email comments or questions for the Council to publicinfo@cityofbowie.org. They can also post comments to the City's social media sites or call 301-809-3032 to share their thoughts.
